

Gives the anasthetic as well as any man I know at home. The others
Are not quite so dependable.

The surgical is perhaps our most trying work, as the responsibility in Critical operations, with no one to advise or give skilled assistance, is Very trying, and, after operating from 8 to 12 or 1, the surgeon feels as If ten days' work had been collected into one-not a happy feeling when
The work of that day is little more than begun.

To summarise the operative work done in the hospital, we would Give the following figures for the past six yrs:--
